201- North Carolina Marvin Collins Planning Awards

The 201; Marvin Collins Planning Awards program is the 63uvsuch program of the North Carolina Chapter of the American Planning Association (NCAPA, or, as now known, APA-NC) recognizing agencies and individuals that have completed outstanding plans, programs, and projects, have excelled as planning students, or have made notable contributions to the planning profession. The awards represent the highest standards of achievement in the planning profession in North Carolina.

The late Marvin Collins developed the idea of an awards program in 1975 for the North Carolina Chapter of the American Institute of Planners, which preceded the NCAPA. He gained approval and assumed responsibility for establishing the program. Marvin received a Distinguished Professional Achievement Award from the NCAPA just prior to his death in 1998. In 2001, the NCAPA Executive Committee named the program in Marvin's honor to recognize his service to the Chapter.

The Outstanding Planning Awards for Small Communities are named in honor of the late Brian Benson, who was a strong advocate of planning for small communities. Brian served as NCAPA Vice President for Professional Development in the early 1990s.

The partnership may include more than two disciplines.

The award category is intended to recognize that multidisciplinary cooperation is increasingly necessary to address the ever-more complicated problems faced by communities today. Projects that require or feature interdisciplinary collaboration as a primary means of ensuring success in project design and/or implementation are eligible for consideration under this category.

The award will go to a project that, due to multidisciplinary collaboration, resulted in:

- more timely implementation; and/or
- improved quality of design.

Awards may be given to projects designed or implemented in the past three calendar years.

Equitable Development Award

This Special Theme award highlights the role of smart growth in meeting the needs of underserved communities and individuals through projects, programs, and/or policies that reduce disparities while fostering places that are healthy, vibrant, and diverse. Entries might include projects that stress combinations of community revitalization efforts led by long-term residents or institutions; use of public investments to promote regional and neighborhood equity; and access to affordable housing and convenient transportation choices. Of particular interest are projects that revitalize or create innovative development in the target neighborhood or region, while demonstrating meaningful participation by residents and community-serving institutions. Awards may be given to public agencies, non-profit organizations, and/or other community groups for projects, programs, and/or policies implemented in the current or past two calendar years.

Awards may be given for technology, techniques, and/or processes implemented in the current or past two calendar years.

Award Selection Process

Consideration of Nominations

Except as otherwise stated, the APA-NC Awards Committee will review the award nominations and select award recipients. The Awards Committee's decisions will be made based on the quality of submissions, with consideration given to the judging criteria outlined below. Awards will not necessarily be given in every category. If the quality of submissions merits such action, the Awards Committee may give more than one award in a category and/or honorable mention recognition. Decisions of the Awards Committee are final. All award nomination materials become the property of the APA-NC, which reserves the right to display them and otherwise publicize award-winning submissions, as it may deem appropriate.

Judging Criteria

The following criteria will be applied by the Awards Committee when reviewing award nominations:

Originality: To what extent does the submission or the work of an individual present a visionary approach or innovative concept that results in a meaningful advance in the planning process?

Transferability: To what extent is there a potential application in other areas or to other projects? For individuals, to what extent does their work increase understanding of planning principles?

Quality: To what extent is there excellence in thought, analysis, writing, graphics, and ethical planning principles?

Implementation: To what extent is the project effective as evidenced by its degree of post-completion or post-adoption activity? In the case of an individual, to what extent has he/she been effective based on the implementation of his/her plans or ideas?

Comprehensiveness: To what extent have planning principles been observed, especially in consideration of the project's/person's effects on other public objectives?

The Awards Committee may consider additional criteria when reviewing nominations.

Awards Timetable

Judging will take place in the spring of 2018. The Awards Committee will send award notifications to award recipients and to all nominators by June 15, 2018. Awards will be presented during the 2018 North Carolina Annual Planning Conference in Winston Salem on Thursday, September 13 at the annual Awards Luncheon.
